PROGRAM DESCRIPTIONS

The first two years of classes are combined training. All candidates learn together in a collaborative atmosphere designed to share strengths and mentor those with less theoretical and practice experience. After year two, the psychoanalytic candidates and academic candidates continue with the remaining years of classes. A psychotherapy candidate may apply to continue training at any time.

Psychoanalytic Candidate: Clinical training designed to prepare licensed doctoral and masters-level psychotherapists with a current practice and two years of post-graduate clinical experience for a career that fully integrates the analytic attitude and the practice of psychoanalytic psychotherapy and psychoanalysis. A personal analysis and ongoing clinical supervision are required. An advisor is assigned to help navigate the program and your analytic practice development.

Psychotherapy Candidate: Clinical training designed to deepen the skills and understanding of psychoanalytic psychotherapy for licensed clinicians with a current practice and two years of post-graduate clinical experience. Ongoing clinical supervision and a psychoanalytic psychotherapy is required. An advisor is assigned to help navigate the program and your psychotherapy practice development.

Academic Candidate: Academic training in psychoanalysis designed for doctoral and masters-level professionals outside of mental health who are dedicated to applying psychoanalytic thinking and perspectives in their chosen career. Academic Candidates take the four years of classes with psychoanalytic candidates and are required to have a personal analysis with a graduated analyst. A mentor is selected to help define and develop a final written project and to fully integrate the learning within one's career. An advisor is also assigned to help navigate the program.

Associate Academic Candidates: Two-year academic training in psychoanalysis designed for doctoral and masters-level professionals outside of mental health who are dedicated to applying psychoanalytic thinking and perspectives in their chosen career. Associate Academic candidates take the first two years of classes with psychotherapy and psychoanalytic candidates and are encouraged to have an analytic treatment with a graduated analyst. An advisor is assigned to help navigate the training program and integrate the learning within one's career. Associate Academic Candidates may apply to continue training as an Academic Candidate.

Advanced Candidate: An advanced candidate has completed course seminars and is still working on the clinical requirements of training. Advanced candidates may be eligible to serve as co-instructors with a senior faculty member in the seminars. All candidates in classes and beyond are encouraged to serve on a committee of the Institute or Center.

Classes are held from September through May at the Institute. An academic year consists of four quarters with two didactic courses and a continuous case seminar per quarter.
